PUTRAJAYA: The Petrol Subsidy Programme scheduled for implementation in January 2020, has been postponed, with the new launch date to be announced later, said Domestic Trade and Consumer Affairs Minister Datuk Seri Saifuddin Nasution Ismail (pic).

In a statement issued Monday, he said the decision to postpone the programme had been made at the Cabinet meeting on Dec 18.

In the meantime, he said, "the public will continue to enjoy petrol prices based on the existing system".

Saifuddin Nasution explained that the programme was postponed to enable briefing sessions to be continued, with the aim of creating awareness and to prepare the public for the implementation of the programme.

It will also provide time for the registration of subsidy beneficiaries, which will be undertaken by the Finance Ministry.

On Oct 7 this year, the government announced the introduction of the programme in January 2020, in line with Pakatan Harapan's manifesto.

In this connection, the government allocated RM2.4 billion for the programme in the 2020 Budget, with programme beneficiaries totalling eight million people from the B40 (low income) and M40 (middle income) groups.

The beneficiaries will each be given a subsidy of RM30 a month for vehicle owners, and RM12 a month for motorcycle owners - the subsidies are to be provided in cash which will be credited into the bank accounts of beneficiaries every four months. – Bernama
