

Fomca: Monitor AP abuse in food imports

The government should stop issuing Approved Permits (APs) for importing food to prevent the system from being abused, said the Federation of Malaysian Consumers Associations (Fomca). - FILE PIC

By Arfa Yunus, Teh Athira Yusof, Sarah Rahim - August 7, 2019 @ 7:53am

The government should stop issuing Approved Permits (APs) for importing food to prevent the system from being abused, said the Federation of Malaysian Consumers Associations (Fomca).

Fomca chief executive officer Datuk Dr Paul Selvaraj said the Agriculture and Agro-based Industry Ministry should ensure that the imported food met safety standards.

"There's no need to issue APs for food when it involves essential items. The ministry just needs to make sure the food brought in is safe.

"If the food is safe, then any retailer who can import the food at the best price should be allowed to do so without needing an AP," he said.

He was commenting on the findings of the Malaysia Competition Commission's (MyCC) Market Review on Food Sector report, which showed that the AP system was being abused in the import of vegetables.

Selvaraj also called on the government to spare no effort to rid the market of middlemen who raked in excessive profits.

Entrepreneur Development Minister Datuk Seri Mohd Redzuan Yusof said his ministry, in a bid to address the country's shortage of beef supply, had initiated discussions with the Australian government to turn Malaysia into a halal meat processing hub.

He said this was part of the newly-launched New Entrepreneur Policy 2030, which focused on increasing the number of local entrepreneurs.

Fomca: Monitor AP abuse in food imports

KUALA LUMPUR: The government should stop issuing Approved Permits (APs) for importing food to prevent the system from being abused, said the Federation of Malaysian Consumers Associations (Fomca).

Fomca chief executive officer Datuk Dr Paul Selvaraj said the Agriculture and Agro-based Industry Ministry should ensure that the imported food met safety standards.

"There's no need to issue APs for food when it involves essential items. The ministry just needs to make sure the food brought in is safe.

"If the food is safe, then any retailer who can import the food at the best price should be allowed to do so without needing an AP," he said.

He was commenting on the findings of the Malaysia Competition Commission's (MyCC) Market Review on Food Sector report, which showed that the AP system was being abused in the import of vegetables.

Selvaraj also called on the government to spare no effort to rid the market of middlemen who raked in excessive profits.

Entrepreneur Development Minister Datuk Seri Mohd Redzuan Yusof said his ministry, in a bid to address the country's shortage of beef supply, had initiated discussions with the Australian government to turn Malaysia into a halal meat processing hub.

He said this was part of the newly-launched New Entrepreneur Policy 2030, which focused on increasing the number of local entrepreneurs.

